

Art 1050: Drawing I
(ART 1005: Drawing I)
The University of Wyoming
Monday/Wednesday
4:00 – 6:20 p.m.
Room: FA 227

Professor: Doug Russell
Office FA 116
Office Phone: 766-3295
Office Hours: Mon 2-4pm, Tues 9-10am
Email: drussell@uwyo.edu
Website: <http://russellfineart.com>

---

“Those who are motivated only by desire for the fruits of action are miserable, for they are constantly anxious about the results of what they do.” - 2:49 - Bhagavad Gita

“What is this drawing? Not once in describing the shape of that mass did I shift my eyes from the model. Why? Because I wanted to be sure that nothing evaded my grasp of it... My objective is to test to what extent my hands already feel what my eyes see.” - Auguste Rodin

Course Description:

A foundation course in drawing introducing fundamentals of observation, looking/responding, artistic invention, and the basic principles of perspective and composition through problems in still life, landscape, and live model. Lectures, drawing sessions, and structured critiques are used to develop the formal, conceptual, and technical understanding of the drawing process.

Course Aims:

- A. General Objectives: Through original drawing and sketching with a variety of abrasive media, the student will have the opportunity to develop basic knowledge and skills essential to the artist. Study and practice will accent perspective, composition and the expressive variation of the visual elements.
- B. Specific Objectives:
Students successfully completing this course are expected to:
1. Draw accurate representations from direct observation using the methods of sighting/diagramming, perspective, proportion, and scale.
  2. Interpret and construct observed spaces and objects in coherent compositions with regard to the principles of design.
  3. Enhance their drawings by the use and variation of visual elements, i.e.: line, shape, form, space, value, and texture.
  4. Select drawing media and surfaces by anticipated outcomes.
  5. Use rapid sketching for the development of preliminary studies and final drawings.
  6. Critique their drawings and the drawings of others using appropriate terminology.
  7. Explain linear perspective and the process of establishing an accurate perspective drawing.
  8. Discuss how principles of design relate to all aspects of drawing.
  9. Exhibit familiarization with historical and contemporary drawing trends.

Content Outline:

- A. Student Level: Undergraduate/Introductory.
- B. Prerequisites: None.
- C. Text: The Art of Responsive Drawing by Nathan Goldstein
- D. Studio Requirements: This course involves participation in a minimum studio experience of 6 hours of supervised instruction per week, 3 hours unsupervised studio per week (students will be afforded sufficient and convenient access to studio space to meet the above requirements), with additional work and research outside of the studio required.
- E. Evaluation: Evaluation will be based on periodic assessment of drawings, quizzes and a written examination or critique concerning concepts and processes studied.

---

*“Realize that a drawing is not a copy.
It is a construction in very different material.
A drawing is an invention.”*

– Robert Henri (The Art Spirit), 1923

Class Organization:

Regular in-class activities will be given to help focus students on the various elements of observational drawings. The emphasis will not initially be on producing a finished drawing, but rather on the successful internalization of each new technique or method. These elements will be slowly brought together during the course, allowing the students to create a complete and integrated idea of perception, drawing and creative thinking. In the end, by separating each part and working it as one would a muscle, a strong and balanced drawing may be created.

Follow-up out of class assignments will also be given to allow the students a longer time to practice each technique. These assignments will be due on a regular basis – weekly or biweekly as time allows. Concise in-class critiques will introduce the students to the verbal language of art and create a sense of closure for each exercise before moving on.

Quizzes will be given to evaluate the internalization of principles and concepts presented in class lecture, handouts and reading assignments

The class will be based on observation. The concept of the model will be introduced initially in the form of still life, landscape and interior, and figure. However, the idea of a model as a point of reference from which to work, either through direct observation or otherwise will be expanded as time allows. The related goal being the capability of the student to understand that any work of art is an orchestration of information from various model sources according to the interests of the artist.

Grading:

Grading will be based upon several aspects of the student's involvement in the course:

1. Internalization and execution of course content as described in the syllabus.
2. Attendance – on time for every class.
3. Preparedness for each day (including supplies and desire to work).
4. General use of class time
5. Finished out of class assignments handed in on time.
6. Constructive participation in class critiques and discussions.
7. Overall improvement of approach to drawing as an activity.

Portfolio reviews will be done at midterm and final exam times.

What each grade means:

- A – Excellent one who answers all of the course requirements and performs at a level which is visibly outstanding.
- B – Good one who answers all of the course requirements and performs at a level measurably above average.
- C – Average one who answers all of the course requirements and performs at the average level compared to the standards set for the class by the faculty.
- D – Poor one who answers all of the course requirements, but performs at a level measurable below average.
- F – Failure one who either does not answer all of the course requirements or does so inadequately to indicate comprehension of the course.

Approach to Class Time and Classroom Regulations:

1. Students are expected to arrive on time. Breaks will be given between most drawing sessions, however students are expected to return and be prepared for the next session in a timely manner. Students are encouraged during longer drawing sessions to walk around class and take a look at each other's work in order to freshen their own individual approach and energy. This course works in a cumulative way, each technique and conceptual approach building upon the previous one. Any absence will hinder the student's ability to follow and stay focused on the current class activities. An extended absence may prove to be insurmountable.
2. Final semester grade will be dropped one letter grade for each unexcused absence over three. Three (3) tardys (or early departures from class) equal an absence. Studio classes cannot be "made up". Doctor's appointments, meetings with advisors, etc. are not excused. Plan these outside of class time.

3. The end of each class will involve a shared cleanup of the room resulting in a organized and clean room ready for the next instructor and class. This will include wiping down table surfaces, picking up floor and table messes and returning chairs, horses etc to organized position, and returning still-life items to their original location. Everyone is expected to participate.
4. Students are expected to keep all class handouts.
5. Students are expected to be prepared to work each class. Bring all necessary materials and wear clothes that are comfortable and suitable for making art. You will get charcoal on you and your clothes. You may end up sitting outside on the ground or on the floor in the building. Be prepared.
6. Students are expected to participate constructively in all class discussions. The interaction between students and your perceptions and comments to each other may prove to be some of the most instructive information you receive.
7. Students are expected to be respectful and tolerant of each other and each other's work. During appropriate times, open classroom discussion is encouraged. Remember this: we are discussing each other's drawings. We are not talking about the person. Be mindful of this distinction when you give or receive comments or criticisms of drawings. Open and intelligent exploration of our opinions will often provide new insights into the drawing process and product. No personal attacks on other students during this class will be tolerated.
8. Beverages (soft drinks, etc) will be permitted in class – but no food whatsoever.
9. Non-enrolled guests will not be allowed in the classroom, unless cleared with me before hand.
10. To avoid distractions in class: All beepers and cell phones are to be turned off or in silent mode. No headphones or personal stereos.
11. Music will be permitted as approved by the instructor.
12. Talking is permitted in quiet moderation. If the instructor – or any student – requests quiet in order to concentrate – that request will be immediately honored with no questions or further comment. You are in the class to concentrate on drawing.

Assignments:

Turn in all assignments on time.

Late assignments will be lowered the equivalent of one letter grade.

All work is to be presented neatly, organized and clearly labeled with the artist's name and date.

(Remember you are learning to draw and to be professional)

DRAWING MATERIALS CARD:

IMPORTANT: For this class you are required to purchase a Drawing Materials Card. You may purchase the card at the Cashier's Office in the west wing of Knight Hall (where student financial aid is located.) The cards are $15.00 each. Once purchased, please bring the card to class where the professor will collect them. Any student, who has not purchased and handed in his or her card, will receive an incomplete for the course.

Studio Access:

The Fine Arts building is open from 5 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Sunday. The drawing studio will be available to students when it is not being used by other classes. Turn off lights/music and close any open windows when you leave. You may bring a friend with you and be "smart" and use the buddy system when you are on campus late at night.

Students and Teachers Working Together Website:

Please take the time to review the following material:

http://uwadmnweb.uwyo.edu/a&s/Current/2005Stud&TeachersWorking%20Together\(7-29-05\).doc.doc)